email. Dear Colleagues, This is to seek your cooperation and support for an urgent matter concerning our Ph.D. Programme. As you know due to Covid related circumstances and almost virtual functioning at both the University and Department levels, there is a lot of information gap. Authentication of data from colleagues is required. This is more a pressing issue due to ongoing transition in our research programme, where M.Phil. has been abolished and Ph.D. is going to be the sole research programme. Kindly provide the following data to me, Professor Shalin Jain (Ph.D. Coordinator) and at the dedicated email id historyphdadmissions@gmail.com: 1. A List of Ph.D. candidates under your supervision. 2. Please ensure that the Research Advisory Committee (RAC) for each one of your research scholars has already been formed. 3. Ensure that all the scholars working under your supervision have completed the mandatory course work. Remember, scholars who have been admitted to the Ph.D. programme after completing their M.Phil. course work are exempt; however, all those who have been admitted to Ph.D. directly after their M.A. are required to attend and pass the course work being run by the department for the M.Phil. students. The credit requirements for Phd scholars is 16 credits of which ARM is for 4 credits only as explained under.4. All scholars who have completed their M.Phil. course work are required to complete their mandatory Ph.D. Advanced Research Methodology course work. This four-credit Research Methodology Course is supposed to be prepared by the supervisor focusing either on historiography or the primary sources of the research topic. The scholar is required to write the course paper of roughly 6000 words to be submitted for a combined assessment by the Research Advisory Committee. The RAC will issue a certificate of this effect giving their marks in the prescribed format to be submitted to the department, subsequently to be communicated to the BRS. 5. The course paper of the Ph.D. Advanced Research Methodology course will have to be presented in a dedicated research forum meeting for this purpose as per the Ph.D. Ordinance. Your urgent attention and support and vigilance in this matter is required.
